

May Karam started working as Nurse in a surgical ward, then in hemodialysis unit and intensive care unit. In the 90s, she worked in heart surgery unit, ICU first then in operating room. In 1998, she went back to a specialized school to obtain her OR Nurse diploma. Then, she worked 2 years in Central Sterile Supply Department (CSSD). Now she works 12 hours night shift in an operating room where they perform orthopedic surgery, traumatology, gynecology, abdominal surgery and Minimally Invasive Surgery and where she worked before day shift. She studied also risk management and health security in healthcare facilities. May is associate editor of the French Journal for Operating Room Nurses "Interbloc".

